FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Standard Builders Recognized with AGC's National Safety Award

Standard Builders was recently recognized by the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC) with a 2014 National Safety Award. Standard Builders is the only Connecticut firm to receive this award within the Building Division and was selected because it had no work-related injuries and illnesses (a zero incidence rate).

Standard Builders' President, Robert J. Sullivan, P.E., stated, "This is a significant honor because it exemplifies the professional expertise that the Standard Builders' team demonstrates on a daily basis."

Standard Builders has been consistently recognized with safety awards for the past nine years by the Connecticut Construction Industries Association. The firm was honored in 2011 and 2012 with Platinum Safety Awards, which honor firms that exceed National Safety statistics.

Safety is the cornerstone of all Standard Builders' operations and is ingrained within the fabric of its company culture. The firm's staff is passionate about safety and is dedicated to maintaining safe job sites to preserve the safety of workers and building occupants at all times.

Founded in 1949, Standard Builders utilizes its traditional construction expertise to provide its clients in the institutional, healthcare and corporate market sectors with value-added service. Standard Builders sets the standard for building excellence.
